DETAILED ACTION

Allowable Subject Matter

1. Claims 1-42 and 44-78 are allowed.
2. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: None of the prior art teaches a method or apparatus for measuring the integrated area of a pulse-like input signal applied to a device characterized by one or more decay time constants in the device's impulse response function by measuring a step-like output signal, referred to as the primary signal, that includes creating a set of secondary signals by directing the primary signal into a plurality of signal paths, performing filtering or delaying in at least one signal path, applying a set of weighting coefficients to the secondary signals, summing the secondary signals, performing at least one capturing operation after any filtering or delaying operation to produce a value that is a measure of the integrated area of the input signal, wherein the filtering, delaying and/or capturing operations establish a defined time correlation between the secondary signals with respect to one another and wherein the weighting coefficients applied to the secondary signals are selected based on the nature of any filters used in the filtering, on the defined time correlation established between the secondary signals and on the value of the decay time constants associated with the device, as shown in claims 1, 58 and 70. None of the prior art teaches teach a method for determining the integrated area of a pulse-like input signal by measuring the step-like output provided by a device in response to the pulse-like input that includes applying a filter set to a device output, detecting the presence of a step-like feature, capturing a set of correlated multiple output sample values, and forming a weighted sum of the sample values to determine the integrated area, where the weights are selected to compensate for errors arising either from the time structure of the pulse-like input, or for deviations from an ideal single-pole response, as shown in claims 65 and 67.
